Giggleswick. Pleas in the same place 17th day of April 36 Eliz [1594]

William Browne versus Christopher Shute, clerk, in a plea of trespass, because: When the legal action and suit occurred between the same complainant and a certain Robert Kellett for a certain messuage in Giggleswick, and for various assaults and affrays and drawings of blood done between them, the same defendant, in consideration that the aforesaid William stopped his aforesaid legal action and suit and put himself in arbitration for all the premises at Giggleswick within etc on the [blank] day of September last, promised to the same William and took it upon himself on behalf of the same Robert, that the same Robert would acquit and exonerate the same William of whatsoever ameracements or costs which the same William should incur, from then onwards, for the affrays and assaults aforesaid. And afterwards the same William was amerced 6s 8d for a drawing of blood upon the same Robert, and paid it, however the aforesaid Robert has not paid the said 6s 8d to the same William, albeit that he has often requested it, but he utterly refused to pay the same, nor did he wish to acquit him of the same according to the promises and undertakings of the aforesaid Christopher. Whereupon he says that he is worsened and has damage to the value of 10s or thereabouts. The defendant says that he did not give any undertaking in the manner and form alleged by the local jury. However the defendant, after the evidence of Brian Cookeson and Hugh Andrew given in court, paid 6s 8d to the complainant.

Margin note The jurors are given a date to render their verdict in this plea, such that they should be here etc, at the next court, under a pain for each of them of 10s.

George Lawson complains against John Armitsted in a plea of trespass, because the same defendant broke and overturned the soil of the complainant, at Longland Heades in Giggleswick in the summer time in the 35th year of Elizabeth, with his plough and cart, and similarly trampled and wasted his crops growing thereupon at the time aforesaid with his plough and cart and his trampling feet, and carried out other enormities against him, to the damage of the said complainant of 3s 4d, as he says. Whereupon the defendant says that he is not guilty, because he claimed his usual right of way for carrying etc from Saltraines and Sandholmes to Giggleswick in the place where he is supposed to have trespassed. And he puts himself upon the local jury about this. And the complainant likewise.

Richard Braishey of Giggleswick complains against Richard Lindsey and Hugh Tailor in a plea of debt of 3s 8½d which he unjustly withholds from him and ought to render to him for two parts of 5s 7d which the same complainant paid both for himself and for ... we fynde the defendant gyltie
