

This undated document is an official record of a deed of purchase of land in Langcliffe and elsewhere made in the period 1685 to 1688 when James II was on the throne before being expelled. It was found in the Northumberland Record Office and is said to refer to a Final Concord of 1606. However, it is partially unreadable since the ink has separated from the paper.