The Contractors being in want of some Money on account of the Work which is now considerably advanced, but there being some dissatisfaction expressed as to the Cellar Walling and the kind of sand made use of in the Mortar of the Building, it was thought desirable before making any advance, to call a Meeting of the Proprietors, and to send for the architect that he might inspect and report upon the sufficiency of the Work, and say what sum should be allowed as subsistence. Mr. Webster has accordingly made his report, that the work is so far satisfactory, that £300 may be paid on account to the contractor now, and £50 more when the second floor is laid.
