Mary took these photos for me. Well done Mary.

Skwelkoms
Lime kiln above
Heights not far from Pordley.
a very good kiln we thought.

Top of Lime
Kiln.
I see a Thorn tree is Rooted for the Top.

How many people have heard the following proverb in full?

A stich in time saves nine
It does and sometimes more
For I have found with grief profound T'would oft have saved a score.
That little rent perhaps you meant to mend another day,
But see, a nail or broken rail has torn the piece away,
And now no more, neat as before, that pretty gown will be,
For though you tried the place to hide
The patch we all can see.

ANON

Old Rylstone - Modern Rylstone

What can we say of Rylstone today,
Its history has nigh been forgotten,
But we looked on the ground
And this we have found
Traces of man down the ages,
Fossils, flints and horns and old bones
Enough to fill hundreds of pages,
We argue still on who gave it a name
Old Rilla who came with the Norse
Runs a good chance of his name
Used of course,
Ton having already been used long ago and now finishes off the name you all know
Ploughing we've traced in most of the fields
When they did it and how long ago?
Don't ask me, I do not know,
The old stone bridge down the lane
The stones fair worn, it shows quite plain
With many an ancient's feet.
The pond was made in case of fire
Everybody had the use of it for house or byre,
When the last rights sold
Tom Irving bought those I am told.

H. WARD

Anybody know when the pond was made?
